

DS-276 sofa

DS-276 by Christian Werner for de Sede

The original idea behind the DS-276 consisted of generously arched and taut surfaces juxtaposed against a delicate design. What at first seems contradictory in fact sets the DS-276 apart. Its surfaces curve away from the petite-footed, straight frame like unfurled sails. To sit in this sofa is to yield to a strong embrace, though its inner world is supple and inviting, with visibly gentle folds that convey the softness of the cushioning.

Precision and seduction intertwine to form the unique character of the DS-276. Christian Werner has crafted a leather sofa combining the buoyant appearance of a soft cushion with precise stitching and a bold, concise design.
