Forma Mentis - In pursuit of materiality

Our view of the kitchen is that it should be a versatile project that can adapt to the requirements of its owners while at the same time being highly functional. The shape and materiality of the Forma Mentis doors, constructed with slanting edges that have micro ridges, has been designed to make it easy to grasp and open without the need of handles thus ensuring clean-cut lines and practicality-of-use.

Moreover, the metal profiles that protect the edges of the doors and table tops make it even more resistant. The look of this kitchen can be customised by choosing the thickness of the top, the type of grip recess and the colours of the profiles and their combinations.
