

Honeycomb suspension lamp

Like the cells of a beehive, the hexagonal modules of Honeycomb are freely grouped in a suspension lamp of captivating organic symmetry. The hexagons, connected by clips, form a self-supporting structure to contain energy-saving halogen and LED sources, for direct and indirect lighting.

